

May 30, 2007

Dear Viacom Shareholders,

We are writing to urge Viacom and Comedy Central to demonstrate respect for the professional writers at Comedy Central, the backbone of your network, by covering our shows with a Writers Guild of America (WGA) contract.

We applaud Comedy Central's decision to open the door to the WGA by reaching an agreement with the writers of The Daily Show and The Colbert Report for full WGA coverage.

We love the freedom and creative support Comedy Central gives us, and we believe that the network's current financial success is in large part due to the efforts of writers. We hope that as Comedy Central continues to grow, so will its relationships with us.

We ask that you strongly urge Comedy Central to begin negotiations with the WGA immediately so that we can focus our energies on running our shows and continuing to make them great.

Sincerely,

Donick Cary, Lil' Bush

Eddie Feldmann, The Showbiz Show with David Spade

Brian Hartt, Mind of Mencia

Carlos Mencia, Mind of Mencia

Rob Schrab, The Sarah Silverman Program

Sarah Silverman, The Sarah Silverman Program

Dan Sterling, The Sarah Silverman Program